Communities are anxiously looking for data to help assess their economic profiles. ACS data are convenient and easy to obtain. ACS can help you identify strengths to build on and weakesses needing attention. ACS can help you answer these basic questions related to economic development.
- What categories of data are commonly used for community economic analyses?
- What do age and education data tell you about your workforce?
- What are the largest sectors of your local economy?
- How does your local economy stack up with surrounding communities?
- How can you access detailed tables that will assist with grant writing and monthly/quarterly reports?
